

QUICK TIPS Resetting the Student Culture

Todd Markham

Topic

- Making Students and Positive Culture A Focus

Focus/Purpose

- Creating Positive Culture
- Developing Student Leaders
- Empowering Students To Lead

Key Takeaways

- If staff have not established clear positive behavioral norms and rules, and communicated them to students, it is not surprising when students act out or violate expectations
- Positive reinforcement makes a difference
- Create events for students and staff to interact
- Create opportunities for students to lead
- Make students the focus
- Design students centered programs
- Celebrate student and staff success
- New students need encouragement
- Regardless of setting, the behavior of both staff and students has a dramatic impact on learning
- It is imperative that we reimagine our approach to behavior management, shifting away from a punitive approach and toward one that is positive
